

Bridging The Gap

There no point in speculating about spiritual issues with little or no information to guide our decision-making processes. But information is available, and finding it is a necessary part of the spiritual search. It is a test of viveka, discrimination. We must want it so that we are motivated from within, and thence comes the flow of energy that will fuel our search. That is where we can begin, by finding within ourselves the yearning for answers that will not be denied. And that requires nothing for its sustenance but the power of our faith and the force of our beliefs.
