

Saul Leiter: Colors

Published in conjunction with the exhibition Saul Leiter Early Color at the Musee de l'Elysee in Lausanne (2011) and edited by Sam Stourdze, this catalogue of works by the influential photographer is richly filled with examples of his style, with its signature abstracted forms and radically innovative compositions. A prominent member of the New York School of photography, Leiter embraced the medium of colour early on and his images have a painterly quality rarely before seen. His captivating snippets of 1950s American life are the subject of this exhibition and book, which includes an reprinted interview with Stourdze from a catalogue published in 2008.
